By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by P. C. Eastment.

Miss Caroline Drewitt had come back to her settlement work in the fall with a determination to inspire the surrounding neighborhood with ideas that should lift them above the level of the commonplace.

"Last year I tried it with pictures and flower study," she told the Rev. Donald McGregor, "and I can't say it was a success. But this year I am going to try music."

The Rev. Donald peered at her with kindly eyes through his nose glasses. He was a tall, spare, sandy haired man, a power in the pulpit, a friend of the people and a firm believer in Miss Caroline Drewitt.

"I am sure it would be a great incentive," he said. "It makes an appeal to the Italians and the Germans, though differently. But how will you arrange it?"

"Gloria has promised to sing every Wednesday night," Miss Caroline told him, "and Harold Cartwright on Fridays. Gloria will give the Germans Wagner and Harold will give the Italians Verdi, and now then we will mix the two and have a grand concert."

McGregor nodded. "It is a great idea," he said, "and you can supplement it with children's classes."

"Yes," Miss Caroline planned, "I shall conduct those myself. I can't sing, but I know the theory. I sometimes wish I had more showy talents to impress my people with, but I must make the best of my practical accomplishments."

"I am sure we could not wish you other than you are," was the Rev. Donald's tribute, and Miss Drewitt blushed prettily and went away with a buoyancy of courage that made her seem almost youthful.

"He's such a help," she told Gloria that night, "in my work." Gloria, brushing her masses of red gold hair, yawned a little.

"I don't see why you bother yourself with a lot of people who don't care to be uplifted," Aunt Caro, she said, "with your money you might be seeing Europe and making a break into society."

"Society palled many years ago, my dear," said Miss Caroline, "and some of my people love me, which is a great deal."

"Everybody loves you," Gloria said impulsively as she leaned over her aunt and kissed her, "and I am even beginning to believe that the Rev. Donald is smitten."

"Gloria!" Miss Caroline's eyes blazed. "Don't say such a thing again. To speak of him that way, as if he were an ordinary man."

"Well, extraordinary men fall in love sometimes," said Gloria wisely. "They are all alike when it comes to love."

"Dr. McGregor, if he ever marries," said humble Miss Caroline, "will choose a woman of talents and beauty—such a woman as you will be some day, Gloria."

Gloria threw up her hands. "Me!" she gasped. "Why, I am going to sing—and the man I love must sing, and we are going to sail away on a sea of romance. I don't like dark alleys and tenebuments."

Then as she saw the look on her aunt's face she went on, "But he is good enough for anybody, Aunt Caro, and I like him immensely."

"And he likes you," said Miss Caroline.

It was this conversation, combined with Miss Caroline's insistent spirit of self sacrifice, that set the little lady a-scheming. Of all women in the world, she loved Gloria best. Unacknowledged, but coloring her whole life, was her love for the Rev. Donald McGregor. And what more fitting than that she should bring these two together in a happy union? Gloria would give the minister the brightness that belonged in his life, and he in turn would wean Gloria from the selfishness of her point of view and would uplift her with himself.

And so it happened that every Wednesday night the Rev. Donald McGregor found himself asked to meet with Miss Caroline's social club, and later he walked home with Miss Caroline and Gloria.

It was during these evenings that Miss Caroline suffered the pangs of martyrdom as her niece with wonderful beauty and art held the little crowd of downtrodden humanity spellbound. The Rev. Mr. McGregor seemed spellbound with the rest, and now that Miss Caroline brought about that which she craved she felt that the sacrifice was too great. If the minister loved Gloria, he would soon cease to be her friend. And how could she live without the support of that friend?

The little woman grew pale and quiet, and turning more and more to the humble people about her, was drawn into their lives, so that she became mother confessor to more than one who in sickness or in health leaned on her wisdom, her common sense, her sympathy.

"You are a wonder," the Rev. Donald told her one morning as she asked his advice with regard to a pair of Italian lovers.

"Tessa's parents want her to marry a richer man," she said, "but I am going to see that she marries Rafael. They love each other, and that is enough."

"Yes," the minister agreed absently, "that is enough."

A FEAT IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Daring Descent to Get a View of an Osprey's Nest.

Now commenced my work, and I descended on my rope to terrace after terrace, forcing my way through thick rows of prickly pear, a most painful operation. And now we found that there was nobody below to signal us where the nest lay. The incredible result was that after descending more than 100 feet I had to signal to be hauled up again, always through the prickly pear. Again I descended, and again I failed to find the nest.

On the third occasion I reached a recess in the great cliff, whence, after unbanding my rope and securing it to a bush for obvious reasons, I made a cast along a ledge to the south and reached a point which I identified as being not far from the nest as seen from below. So I retraced my steps and, regaining my rope, was hauled up for a third time. During this operation I passed a ledge where a peregrine falcon was nesting. The old female swept close around with shrill cries and eventually alighted on the sandy shelf of rock within a few feet of me and, with outspread wings and every feather standing on end, lowered her head and screamed furiously. I have no doubt I was close to her young, but I had more serious work in hand, and so I left her alone.

I now made my fourth and last descent and found myself immediately over the nest, but before I could go down to it the party handling the rope had to work their way down toward me, since the rope was too short. Finally I reached the nest, an enormous mass of big sticks measuring more than five feet across and doubtless the result of many years' work. In it were two eggs much incubated. By standing on a ledge close to the nest and pressing the camera between my body and the face of the cliff I was able to take some long time exposures with fairly good results. It was near sunset, and the cliff was in deep shadow, which did not facilitate my task. Between the shaly nature of the cliff, the slippery terraces covered with loose soil and stones, and the detestable prickly pears I never had a more unpleasant or arduous task on a cliff before. But I have lived to endure worse experiences, although not so painfully protracted as were these.

My very curt entry in my diary summarizes the whole job thus: "Bad shale cliffs, vertical and dangerous. Height over sea, 100 feet. Top of cliff, 310 feet. The worst bit of rope work I ever did."

With regard to the prickly pears, it was many months before the last of the poisonous spines I had collected in various parts of my body consented to come out, and then only after first feathering—London Saturday Review.

Disinterested Professional Advice. "Bring me that beefsteak potpie!" "Yassah," said the dining car waiter, listening near by.

"And bring me some of those French peas!" "Yassah, but boss, maybe you all don't know dey's French peas in dat pie."

"No, I didn't. Thanks, George, and—ah—and—ah, then bring me some potatoes."

"Yassah, boss; but maybe you all didn't know dey's tateh, too, in dat pie."

"No, I didn't. Thanks again, George. It's mighty nice of you to keep me from buying a lot of stuff I wouldn't want."

"Yassah, Ah reckon it's mighty nice o' me t' do dat, boss. Ah's seen so many, na-a-y people—nice gentlemen, lak you—waste money fo' vegetables dat might jus' as well 'n' been handed over t' de waitah. Yassah, Ah sho' has,"—Judge.

COMMON SENSE
Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and state its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more they will be valued, he has been recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended in the most advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hanger-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the Golden Medical Discovery in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

Superstitions of Thieves.
The pickpocket is superstitious. He will rarely rob a person who squints, this being accounted a certain sign of disaster, and if it happens that the purse he steals contains foreign money it is believed to augur that he will travel a good deal in the immediate future, but whether in the company of a couple of police officers or not there is nothing to show.

Weddings and funerals are significant events for the professional thief. To pick a pocket at a funeral would be to court immediate disaster, but many of them think if a purse stolen at a wedding contains gold it portends the best of luck for the thief during the ensuing six months.

Some pickpockets have a favorite pair of boots that they wear as long as they can keep them on their feet, and if they are not arrested while they are wearing them they cut the boots up into little square pieces and give them away as "lucky tokens" to their friends.—London Chronicle.

Intellect and Drunkenness.

How to reconcile inconsistencies has ever been a problem, and an example is that of men of brains, powerful intellects, apparently strong wills, who become self-elected victims of the liquor habit. It is a matter of common observation that the smartest men succumb to the effects of over-indulgence, whereas men of ordinary calibre seem to know the happy medium and are never worse drunkards than your mental giants, who had prided themselves on good judgment and self-control. Put your son in college and the intellectual atmosphere seems to make a strange incongruity by promoting the beer lust and other Bacchanalian festivities. The edict at Stanford University, whereby expulsion was to follow drunkenness when discovered, is said to jeopardize the standing of over half the male graduates of that institution of learning.

How to reconcile the fact that the upbuilding of intellect does not strengthen the will power or self-control or self-respect is a knotty question for psychologists. Is the organism of the highly developed intellect more delicate and sensitive and so more easily affected than the ordinary brain? Are the physical parts weakened by over-mental development so that they do not resist the nervous tension and other effects of too much liquor? Let the specialist tell us these things.

In the intellectual world of schools and colleges there is too much Bacchanalian cult at the present time. There is more of it there than in the world of business and it is an idealism that should be put down. Good fellowship is the excuse for it and college-bred youths are forced into touch with a temptation when they are most susceptible and most likely to form undesirable habits. Out in the business world, where public opinion now only tolerates moderation, there is less danger in youth or maturity. The fraternity cellar and the student beer lust, however, lures more promising young men to temptation than the public bar-room, for they are cloaked with a seeming "smartness" and there is a status about the college fellow who furnishes the booze which his temperance brother never seems to attain. Here is a real menace and an aspect of the liquor question which could be effectually remedied by such legislation as that recently enacted by Stanford's trustees.

American Money Buys Japan Weapons

DESPITE the growing realization of the belligerent relations between America and Japan, Americans on this coast have turned over the other cheek, so to speak, that the Japs may smite it to their sweet satisfaction, for despite anti-Japanese and exclusion leagues many continue to employ the Orientals, putting American money into the hand of the little brown man that he may purchase ammunition for his hoped-for U. S. target. Every day the wily Japanese send American wages to the war fund and yet we contribute most cheerfully to it. Surely, we are a most unusual Christian people. We are recruiting and enriching an army for the Mikado. We are sharpening the teeth which will bite off the very hand with which we now feed them. This is truly a beautiful philosophy of life and a lovely example for the pagans in the land of the rising sun, but while they learn our practical modes they are not yet ready to accept philosophies and will simply make of them advantages while they laugh in their mandarin sleeves. We will contribute to the fund for honoring our fleet, we will cheer our naval heroes, we will open our hearts to every jackie, but we will continue to put money into the palms of the smiling Japanese that they may be made more able to strike at these very young Americans, the flower and pride of our country, to whom we are according such hero worship and patriotic fire as they throw our streets from the battleships. Fie on such patriots!

"Owed" to the Flea.

Oh, joy immense, my heart doth thump,
For sure as the day,
They are going to pay
For every flea that doth jump!
So come on, ye critters, by gum,
I will get you under my thumb;
And off to the city
I will go with my game,
Point out the germs
Which cling to your frame;
And they'll pay me
A goodly lump sum.
A nightmare! a dream of a flea event!
Oh, ho, scratched of course,
And I don't get a cent!

WOMEN are told that if they had the vote men would lose their respect for them; so they are advised to use their indirect influence and retain the high regard of the sterner sex. Two women tried their influence in behalf of the labor candidate for Parliament in Mid-Devonshire, England, the other day and the press dispatches say: "They were recognized by the infuriated crowd and were hustled and pelted with stones and eggs. Finally they were knocked down and kicked. The opportune arrival of the police was the only thing that saved their lives."—Exchange.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy Repeated.

Mebbe you heard that one difference between Kentucky and California—one is mostly moonshine while the other is mostly sunshine. But I want to tell you that there is no moonshine about our $20 single-breasted sacks, those with the long lapels, nearly straight fronts and made of the very best grade of black unfinished worsted. Of course we know that every clothing house tries to put forward the best $20 suit they can get and make a living profit, but it all depends upon how nice a piece of cloth they are willing to put in to it and what grade of tailoring they are willing to pay for. You know the same piece of cloth may be given to a workman who will make up a coat for a dollar, and the trimmings cost another dollar, or it may go out to a tailor who gets five dollars for his handiwork and the trimmings may cost another five. Now the boss wouldn't tell me what he paid but he said enough to put me wise to the fact that he isn't asking enough for our black walking suits. I'll give him a tip on that, right now.

Shoults Must Pay $50.

The optometry law of the State was held to be valid and constitutional in the Superior Court on Monday morning, says the Napa Journal, when Judge Gessford affirmed the decision of the lower court, which found R. G. Shoults, the local druggist, guilty of practicing optometry without a license. Shoults was convicted several months ago and fined $50 by Justice of the Peace Combs.

The defendant's attorney, former Appellate Justice A. J. Buckles of Fairfield, appealed to the higher court, maintaining that the trial Justice had committed several errors; also arguing that the state law was unconstitutional. The case was argued and submitted to Judge Gessford on February 7.

ST. VALENTINE'S DANCING PARTY.

It Was a Brilliant Success and a Social Event Not Soon to be Forgotten.

The St. Valentine's dancing party given in Union Hall on Friday evening of last week was one of the most successful and enjoyable social functions that has taken place in Sonoma for a long time. The party, which was given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koenig, the host and hostess of the Union Hotel, was the first of a series which will be given by them from time to time.

About forty couples were on the floor and tripped the light fantastic in the first number on the artistic dance program, a waltz, which was witnessed by many spectators. The floor was well and satisfactorily managed by Wm. J. Kearney and Dr. H. W. Gottenberg.

The hall was beautifully and artistically decorated, the handiwork of Mrs. Koenig and her sister, Miss Adele Livernash, and the ladies received many congratulations for their artistic skill as decorators.

At midnight an appetizing lunch was served by the host and hostess, after which dancing was renewed and kept up until long after midnight. The music was by Pauli's orchestra of three pieces.

There was a generous response by our party-going people to the general invitation to be present and a spirit of sociability seized upon all those present, who expressed the opinion that it was one of the most delightful parties they had attended this season.

The second of a series of these dancing parties to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Koenig will take place some time in May.

Arrested for Defrauding on Inn Keeper.

Young Son and Heir.

Jack McDonell, the editor of the Sebastopol Times, is a daddy, Mrs. McDonell having presented her spouse with a young son and heir on Wednesday last, of which Jack is very proud. We are more than pleased to note this event as it proves that Br'r McDonell, though he be a Democratic editor, has become a convert to the Rooseveltian doctrine of doing something for his country, even though he has been a long time about it, and is not yet beyond redemption and may be supporting Taft before the coming political campaign is over. Mr. and Mrs. McDonell have a large circle of friends in Sonoma who extend congratulations.

DARING BURGLAR CAUGHT RED-HANDED

Shows Fight When Arrested by Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan.

On Thursday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock an entrance was effected through the rear door of the Dew Drop Inn by a daring burglar, during the absence of Jas. Modini, the proprietor, who was eating his supper in a near-by restaurant.

Upon returning to his saloon by the front entrance at 7 o'clock Mr. Modini discovered that his cash register had been tampered with and $10.80 extracted from the same. He also discovered that a 44-calibre revolver, a new razor and other property had been stolen.

The burglar had effected an entrance to the premises in the rear. He broke a pane of glass in a panel of the door and inserting his hand into the hole made by the break, unlatched the door. He then secured his booty and made good his escape.

Upon discovering that his place of business had been burglarized Mr. Modini informed Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan, who repaired to the saloon to investigate. Upon entering the premises the officer found Roy Stockwell, a well known young man of this place, standing in front of the bar. He had just entered and was partially under the influence of liquor.

As young Stockwell had been loitering around the premises for an hour or so before the robbery, suspicion pointed to him as the offender. Officer Ryan then placed him under arrest and when he attempted to search him Stockwell broke away from the officer and made his way out the door. Here he was again tackled by the intrepid officer and a lively scuffle followed, in which young Fred. Marzo came to the assistance of the officer, and between them downed the suspect. Having subdued his man officer Ryan proceeded to search him and singular to relate, all the stolen property was found upon him, except the money, to wit: A 44-calibre revolver, a razor and two harmonicas. Of the money taken only $1.50 was found upon Stockwell, and what became of the balance is what is puzzling the officer.

Upon the prisoner was also found two full boxes of 44-calibre rounds which inquiry revealed had been purchased immediately after the robbery at Schocken's store in another part of town.

Stockwell was locked up pending a preliminary examination on a charge of burglary. He is a young man about 22 years of age and his parents are highly respectable people of this place.

MAKE THIS UP AT YOUR HOME.

Prepare it at Home By Shaking Ingredients Well in a Bottle.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

One-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it should not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

HIS TERRIBLE EYES.

Senator Cass Could Almost Paralyze a Man With a Look.

Giant heads, bodies and brains were Webster and Cass. All the strength of New Hampshire granite was concentrated in those two sons. To look upon them made the ordinary man feel small. Wonderful eyes they possessed, and men have been known to shiver with dread when one of the other allowed his glance to fall upon them. Cass could look through a stranger in a way to make his brain burn and his knees knock together. One searching stare seemed to destroy all mentality and fill the victim with paralytic emotions.

No man dared take liberties with Cass. In 1843 the proprietor of the National hotel in Washington was a man who so closely resembled the great senator from Michigan that he was often mistaken for him. An old friend, returning from a journey, entered the lobby and, seeing him leaning against the desk, slipped up behind and hit him a terrific whack on the shoulder, saying cheerily and simultaneously: "Hello, old man! Here I am back again. How are you?" Senator Cass straightened up his six feet three and, turning upon the assailant his terrible, bloodshot eyes, almost annihilated him with a look. Not a word was spoken. That look was ample. The stranger was so "rattled" that he could not even apologize, but slunk dejectedly out of the hotel.

Later in the day when congress was supposed to be in session the stranger returned to the hotel to shake hands with the proprietor and tell him all about the Cass incident. Walking bravely up, he laid his hand down on his friend's shoulder and, without waiting for a greeting, surprised him with: "See here, old fellow, you got me in a deuce of a scrape this morning. Why, you know, I took old Cass for you, slapped him on the back, nearly taking off a shoulder, and the old fool looked at me as if he wanted to commit murder. The damned old lunatic, why doesn't he stay out of here? He knows—again the great senator from Michigan straightened up his six feet three, again he turned his bloodshot eyes, again he looked and again the victim fled. Two mistakes of that kind in one day!

CHARACTER IN WALKING.

Traits Which Are Readily Disclosed by One's Gait.

"There's a concealed man coming down the street," said the girl in the group on a corner. "How do I know?" By his walk. "I can tell the chief trait of any person's character by watching him or her walk. For instance, if a man walks with a heavy lift to his hips he's sure to be obstinate. If he sinks down a little on his heels he has a comfortable attitude toward life and the world in general—in fact, he's a lazy. That woman coming down the street now is a gossip. Any one could tell that because of her mincing, fussy gait. Indecision is the chief characteristic of that woman's character across the street. Don't you see how she swings her foot rather hesitatingly in the air before she puts it down?"

"The man who walks with his knees leading is sure to be of the pious type. The disagreeably pious type. I mean, you see that old color who is crossing the road with his stomach seeming to lead the rest of him—well, of course it is evident that feeding is his chief delight. When an intellectual man walks his head leads. That girl who sways so is self-conscious. Yes, that girl going down the street has a pretty walk, gliding and quiet, but watch out for her; she is treacherous in the extreme."

"The man who puts his feet down especially solidly is heavy and somewhat stupid. That little person crossing the road with a quick, clean step is energy personified, but he has the sort of energy which has no regard for the rights or feelings of others. The girl coming out of that store has an ugly streak in her nature. Don't you see how she puts her foot down unwillingly as if she were saying: 'I won't! I won't!' I shouldn't advise any man to marry her."

"Of course I don't pretend to know thoroughly a person's character by his walk, but I do discover his predominant characteristic."

The Quality of Mercy.
A notorious mountain lion-shiner, familiarly known as Wild Bill, was tried before a federal court in Georgia and was adjudged guilty. Before pronouncing sentence the judge lectured the prisoner on his long criminal record and at last, informing him that the court entertained no feeling of anger toward him, but felt only unmixed pity, sentenced him to spend six years in the federal prison at Atlanta.

Bill stood shifted the quid of tobacco in his mouth and turned to leave the courtroom with the marshal. Once outside the only thing he said was this: "Well, I shall am glad he wasn't mad at me!"

Proving It.

"Keep up your courage, old man," said the passenger who was a good sailor to another who was leaning over the railing and paying tribute to Neptune.

"Never mind me," came the answer between gasps. "I've always heard that it took travel to bring out what there is in a man."

Painfully Natural.

Playwright is her acting natural? Manager (enthusiastically)—Natural! Why, when she appeared as the dying mother last night an insurance agent who has her life insured for $25,000 and who was in the audience actually fainted.—London Tit-Bits.

Pleasant and Most Effective

T. J. Chambers, editor Vindicator, Liberty, Tex., writes Dec. 23, 1902. "With pleasure and unhesitatingly I bear testimony to the curative power of Ballard's Forehead Syrup. I have used it in my family and can cheerfully affirm it is the most effective and best remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used."

Christians and Non-Christians.

If all the Roman Catholics in the world were assembled in one city they would make a city larger than the entire population of the United States, Russia and Austria-Hungary. But all the religious Protestant and Catholic denominations combined would make a city only about one-third the size of a city large enough to contain all the Mohammedans, Buddhists, Brahmans, pagans and other non-Christians of the world.—Minneapolis Journal.

Her Amiable Husband.

Mrs. Tittle—That photographer's wife always goes to some other man's studio to have her photographs taken. Mrs. Tittle—Of course. She never could "look pleasant" when her own husband was about.

Still Unsettled.

"Are you entirely settled in your new flat?"
No, not entirely; the landlord is still nagging us for the balance due on the first month's rent.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold. Whether it is a child or an adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given.

Bacteria in Butter.

"Bacteriologists have shown us that ordinary butter is swarming with germs," declares Good Health. "A single teaspoonful of milk generally contains from 2,000,000 to 10,000,000 germs. The number may even be much larger than this. In the removal of cream from the milk the germs are taken with it, and in the process of churning the germs are collected with the fat, so in the butter we have the concentration of a large part of the germs contained in the milk from which the butter was derived. So in a pound of butter derived from twenty pints of milk the number of bacteria must be almost beyond estimate. A brief computation will show that the number of bacteria contained in a pound of butter might easily reach the enormous sum of five to ten billions."

A Touch of Vanity.

On Nov. 25-26, Catherine's day—French girls who have passed their twenty-fifth birthday and are unmarried wear a little cap made of fine muslin, the symbol of maidenhood. As the day approaches the millinery shops show these caps in great quantities, and their manufacture by young girls is always accompanied by jokes at the expense of old maids; but, strange to relate, these caps, because they are becoming to all, are worn on St. Catherine's day by young girls as well as by old maids.

Where It Doesn't Apply.

"Slow and sure," remarked the man with the quotation habit, "is a good motto."
"That," protested the thoughtful thinker, "there is one thing—that can never be slow and sure."
"What's that?" queried the quotation dispenser.
"A watch," replied the t. t.—Kansas City Independent.

A CLEAN WATCH

means good time to you for years to come. True eco only in a time-piece lies in cleanliness. The delicate parts doing indissoluble work will soon wear themselves to ruin, destroy their high finish and perfect fit when running in accumulating dirt and rancid oil. It will cost you nothing to let us examine it.
